LOCAL NEWS.

KING STREET. -This is the principal business street of this ancient town-city, "so-called"and, really, considering all things, is a street which no Alexandrian "need be ashamed of." A great improvement has been made in its appearance within the last few years. The carriage way has been repaved—the pavements widened-the unsightly sheds and awnings removed, and many really handsome stores and ather buildings erected along this thoroughfure. Of late days, the old uniformity of plain brick fronts, has been varied by ornamental and architectual variations—pleasing to the eye, at least. Altogether, King street would do no discredit to a much larger and more "pretentious" place than Alexandria. And we will ald that the stores on the street are generally not only handsome and spacious, but well arranged.

THE METEORIC SHOWER.—We have already alluded to to the prediction of a "rain of stars" in November, and we have noticed for several nights an unusual frequency and brilliance of meteoric displays in the heavens, and gather from our exchanges that the same has been the case in other parts of the State. If the shower does come, we shall have a new agitation in the scientific world, a re-discussion of the causes of the phenomenon, of the laws of its recurrence (every thirty-three years) and of the composition of the falling bodies-where they come from, why they never hit anybody, &1. &c. We hope Capt. Walsh will instruct his vigilant command to sound an alarm 25 SOOD as the "shower" commences, for it would be discressing that any person should miss so grand and economical a pyrotechnic ex-

SIONS OF A HARD WINTER. - The phenomand which usually presage, according to the notions of the observant in such matters, the approach of a hard winter, are becoming very marked as the season progresses. Hives are overflowing with honey, the husks of corn are declared to be of extra thickness, and the furs of animals are pronounced exceedingly rich and heavy. It is observed, too, that the squirrels are making arrangements on an inreased scale for the storage of nuts.

Water fowl too approach nearer the city than usual-two wild goese having been killed within the past week near the mouth of Hunting Creek, and a flock of swans noticed off Fort

THE CANAL. - Water was let into the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal about eight o'clock on Monday night, and in a short time the boats began to arrive at Georgetown. It is expected that the business upon the canal, the remainder of the season will be unusually brisk. Yesterday morning, when a full supply of water was in the Georgetown Division, the feeder gate to the Alexandria Canal was overflowed, and the water rushed in and partially filled the bed of the Aqueduct, because, in order to give a geater depth of water on the Georgetown level, Su perintendent Cameron raised the bank of the feeder at the Little Falls, and placed strips upon the tumbling race so as to increase the depth on the Georgetown, level four inches more than ever before. The feeder gate at the aqueduct was constructed to conform to the former depth, and when the increased water was let on, it was, of course, overflowed, but the purely accidental test thus applied was intirely satisfactory to the lessees, and the water will be permanently let in the Canal, and navigation opened on that important artery of our city's trade on or about the fifth of November.
